

Cutting Through the Cultural and Institutional B/S that Dominates our Current Reality

By William Buhlman www.astralinfo.org

I am 73 years old, a stage-four cancer survivor, and I have no time for subtlety or ivory tower theories. We live in a world of misinformation, distortion, and constant distractions, where the blind (matter-focused) lead the blind. I have experienced realities beyond description, worlds without form, communication without thought, pure beingness beyond words. How do you tell humans they are not human? How do you prove immortality to other people? How do you explain our incredible multidimensional existence and worlds within worlds? How do you separate the reality of our existence from the lifetime of indoctrination we all swim in?

I know it's a difficult task to be an immersed physical human and remember what you truly are. For all eight billion of us this is the ultimate test in this dense reality: to waken to our true self and remember our purpose for visiting this strange alien world!

It takes real courage to question everything you have learned and believed from birth. It takes courage to step away from the many human tribes and beliefs and be a free-thinking individual. By rejecting all the consensus thoughts of society, you stand alone in a void. This void is your opportunity to experience a new-found freedom to express fresh ideas and inspiration unencumbered by the high walls of rigid thought built by others. This freedom is its own reward!

To begin, a serious self-examination of our state of consciousness is essential. Make a written list of everything you have been programmed to believe from birth. Examine and reappraise what supports your man-made conclusions. Challenge yourself to be completely objective and examine all the comfortable beliefs you cling to! Becoming self-aware is not about adding more beliefs to your mind; it's about purging yourself of the lifetime of social indoctrination that distorts and limits your perception.

Insights from 50 years of Nonphysical Exploration

We are a nonphysical species, not biological humans. We are consciousness using form for expression in multiple dimensions.

We become what we select to learn. We learn and evolve through many personal experiences in many different realities.

No one has ever died/ceased to exist. At death we spontaneously transfer our consciousness to one of our existing nonphysical energy bodies.

The observed universe is the thin dense epidermis of a vast multidimensional nonphysical continuum.

Each experienced nonphysical dimension is progressively less dense and more thought-responsive. All exist now!

We currently possess and use multiple nonphysical energy bodies; each is a vehicle for expression in a different and unique energy dimension.

We only perceive the reality in phase with our currently activated energy body.

All man-made beliefs are flawed or completely false. We existed long before all religions, politics, and national borders. Humans have created 3,000 religions and nations—less than .01% exist today!

The universal path to self-knowledge and self-awareness is an inward multidimensional journey. Death, NDEs, OBEs, and dreams are all evidence of the universal inner nonphysical path of consciousness!

Linear time is a man-made construct—what is time to immortal consciousness?

Reincarnation is a reality. It is an individual choice for learning through personal experience. It's not a mandate and it's not forced upon the individual.

The very act of birth (entering matter) is an amazing multidimensional expansion, extension, and exploration of the immense capabilities of consciousness. This is an essential unseen purpose and function for the outer crust of our multiverse. The other core function of matter is the individualization of consciousness. Going physical provides an effective training ground for the multidimensional evolution of all consciousness.

All form-based realities are temporary constructs and a manifestation of collective or individual consciousness. Our reality is not digital!

As consciousness, we possess the innate ability to experience the answers for ourselves.

We (our nonphysical energy bodies) are our inner portal to the entire multiverse.

We must confront and dissolve our fears or else continue to be a victim of our own held energies.

The biblical heavens of all religions are early human attempts to describe the vast nonphysical multidimensional dimensions. Eternal hell does not exist.

Life's dramas repeat until the unseen energies creating them are resolved.

We are all immortal as consciousness. There is no need for fear during all inner explorations!

The unseen dimensions are our loving and supportive home.
